Galatians 3:28

FOLLOW IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF CHRIST

The great fifty-day celebration of Easter has concluded, as have the feasts honoring the Holy Trinity and the Body and Blood of Christ. Last week we began a long stretch of Ordinary Time that will bring us to late November. Saint Paul tells us today that those who are baptized "have clothed yourselves with Christ" (Galatians 3:27). This scripture is echoed in the Church's baptism ritual when we sing, "You have put on Christ, in him you have been baptized." This message is inspiring and sobering at the same time, for in today's Gospel, we get to the heart of what it means to be clothed in Christ. The Lord tells us, "If anyone wishes to come after me, he must deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me" (Luke 9:23). For the next twenty-two weeks we are called to take up the cross and, with Saint Luke as our guide, follow in the footsteps of Christ.

NATURE'S WAY

As a priest I've seen more than my share of peoples comings and goings. Births and deaths are constants in all our lives. Even though I've buried many of my friends and family these past few years, lately I have also noticed a great upsurge in the amount of children born to our parish families. All of us are healed when children are born into our families. The pain of loss and the pain of difficult lives are lessened with the joy of new birth. Simeon in the Scriptures wanted to hold the child Jesus. People always want to hold a new born child and when they do so, they are healed and blessed.

There are great risks at birth, but new birth is natures way to heal us and keep us going. Congratulations to all new parents, good luck to all future parents and to all those trying to adopt. God's blessing on all of you and be assured of our prayers here at St. Teresa of Avila.

The World's All Right (By Robert Service)

*The World's all right; serene I sit,
And cease to puzzle over it.
There's much that's mighty strange, no doubt;
But nature knows what she's about;
And in a million years or so
We'll know more than to-day we know.
Old Evolution's under way-
What ho! The world's all right, I say.*

*Could things be other than they are?
All's in its place, from mote to star.
The thistledown that flits and flies
Could drift no hair-breadth otherwise.
What is, must be; with rhythmic laws
All Nature chimes, Effect and Cause.
The sand-grain and the sun obey ---
What Ho! The World's all right, I say.*

*The World's all right; serene I sit,
And joy that I am part of it;
And put my trust in Nature's plan,
And try to aid her all I can;
Content to pass, if in my place
I've served the uplift of the Race.
Truth! Beauty! Love! O Radiant Day ---
What ho! The World's all right, I say*

God Bless,
Fr. Mike

Giggles: Astute Secretary: Fr. O'Brien sees Mrs. Murphy heading for the parish office. He says to his secretary; "That battleaxe Mrs. Murphy is coming, I'm going out the back door." An hour later the priest opens the back door and shouts; "I hope that battleaxe has left." The astute secretary answered "The battleaxe left a long time age But, Mrs. Murphy would like to see you."

LIFELONG FAITH FORMATION

Guided by our bishops, we see seven principles for life long catechesis emerge.

First, the goal of life long catechesis is discipleship. Jane Regan, in her seminal book on all of this (Toward an Adult Church from Loyola Press, 2002) has said that the goal of all catechesis, even that which we offer to children, is discipleship. This principle suggests that in every case, merely understanding doctrine won't be sufficient. It is also necessary to know what it means to live our faith in daily life as disciples of Christ.

Second, life long catechesis is rooted in parish life. There might be a tendency today to throw in the towel on adult catechesis as a parish process, saying to ourselves that the adults don't really want this, or that we don't have time for it, or that it just doesn't fit into the budget, or whatever. When we do this, someone else steps into the lives of our people. More often than not, that will be popular spirituality and evangelical Christianity, which have good things to offer, but they are not a systematic presentation of our Catholic faith. The parish is the place in which we root life catechesis and if we don't we will miss the boat.

Third, and I don't know how the bishops could have made this more clear, what we offer in life long catechesis must be systematic. And what they mean by that is, to quote them again, "a catechesis that nurtures a profound, lifelong conversion of the whole person and sets forth a comprehensive, contemporary synthesis of the faith, as presented in the Catechism of the Catholic Church."

Fourth, what we offer in life long catechesis must connect to daily life. The Catechism itself starts out by explaining how real and profound is the inborn human hunger for God. Christ is the bread and water of life which satisfies this hunger. If people cannot come to understand this from what we offer them in life long catechesis, we have failed to do our jobs.

Fifth, life long catechesis has two results. One of them is transformation. Our lives are transformed when we encounter Christ. We experience forgiveness and we become forgiving. We experience mercy and we become merciful. We experience generosity and we become generous. We experience the Body of Christ and we become the Body of Christ.

Sixth, the second result is lives of service and sacrifice. We understand what it means to enter into the death of the Lord and we understand that, only by dying to ourselves can we live in the light of the resurrection. This powerful experience of the Paschal Mystery must be part and parcel of any life catechesis. The bishops call this "the transforming power of grace" and they are right! It is transforming. It is powerful. It is a free gift, a real grace, opened up for us by life long catechesis.

Seventh, this is essential work. It is not optional for us. The bishops even go so far as to call it "the central task" of our entire catechetical enterprise in the parish. Working together, we are now actively seeking ways to accomplish this.

If you have been following this series of readings by Jane Regan, Bill Huebsch and Sr. Anita, please email Sr. Anita at sr_anita@stteresaauburn.com with your input for next weeks bulletin by Monday, June 21st before 4:00pm.
